MEG CONKEY RECEIVES CHANCELLOR'S AWARD

The Chancellor's Award for Advancing Institutional Excellence was presented to Professor of Anthropology Meg Conkey on April 14, 2009 in recognition of her outstanding service to promote diversity and equal opportunity. Her colleague Rosemary Joyce observed that Conkey is "one of the leading voices in the development of archeology of gender." Conkey's recent activity includes supporting the development of indigenous archaeology, the study in which native peoples on colonized continents approach the archaeological field as a historical discipline with consequences for today's minority peoples.
